The Foundation for the Performing Arts Center (FPAC) was founded in 1986. Together with Cal Poly State University and the City of San Luis Obispo, the Foundation created a partnership for the purpose of building an outstanding performing arts venue in San Luis Obispo County. The FPAC helped raise much of the millions of dollars needed to construct the Performing Arts Center. In September 1996, the PAC finally opened. The PAC today is comprised of several venues, including the majestic Harold Miossi Hall, the Spanos Theatre, Philips Hall, and the multi-purpose Pavilion.

A film documentary was made recently to highlight how this partnership brought together the people and the money needed to make the PAC dream come true. Entitled "Playing in Unison," the film debuted at a FPAC fundraiser last year. Kristin Hoover, the Executive Director of the FPAC, will discuss the history of the Performing Arts Center, and show a few clips from the documentary.

Although there will be no back stage tours at the luncheon, attendees will have the chance to sign up for a tour to be scheduled at a later date.
